Wind

Between
00:00 Sat 25 Jan 2025 and
15:00 Sat 25 Jan 2025

Storm Éowyn will continue to bring strong winds into Saturday, with some disruption possible

What to expect

- Power cuts may occur, with the potential to affect other services, such as mobile phone coverage
- Injuries and danger to life from flying debris are possible
- Some damage to buildings, such as tiles blown from roofs, could happen
- Road, rail, air and ferry services may be affected, with longer journey times and cancellations possible
- Some roads and bridges may close
- Injuries and danger to life could occur from large waves and beach material being thrown onto sea fronts, coastal roads and properties

Further details

Strong westerly winds will persist through the first part of Saturday as Storm Éowyn moves away to the northeast, with gusts of 40-50 mph inland and 50-60 mph on some exposed coasts and hills. There is a chance of 60-70 mph gusts across Orkney for a time. Winds will ease during the early afternoon.

What Should I Do?

Give yourself the best chance of avoiding delays by checking road conditions if driving, or bus and train timetables, amending your travel plans if necessary.

People cope better with power cuts when they have prepared for them in advance. It's easy to do; consider gathering torches and batteries, a mobile phone power pack and other essential items.

If you are on the coast, stay safe during stormy weather by being aware of large waves. Even from the shore large breaking waves can sweep you off your feet and out to sea. Take care if walking near cliffs; know your route and keep dogs on a lead. In an emergency, call 999 and ask for the Coastguard.

Be prepared for weather warnings to change quickly: when a weather warning is issued, the Met Office recommends staying up to date with the weather forecast in your area

Reason for update

Winds have now eased across much of Scotland with warning area reduced accordingly. Warning also moved to low impact column as winds across remaining warning area are expected to be less strong.
